CITY AND COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER

FRIDAY,..

The Centennial.

The hundredth anniversary of American Independence should be a generous reunion of independent States and patriotic citizens. It should be a jubilee of liberality over fanaticism, of statesmanship over bigotry. It should mark the inauguration of a new era of good will to men and peace on earth. Let Independence Hall be consecrated anew; let the old "liberty bell" be recast and let its iron tongue make Fairmount Park re-echo with the glad tidings to all the States. Then will past differences be forgotten, sectional animosities be buried with the dead heroes of the late war, whose graves will be hallowed in the regretful memories of the past. Philadelphia, the old cradle of liberty, should be again rocked, but by the song of peace, from the joyful lips of forty million people.

The Standard of Value.

The Fall River News of March 25th says: "For the question of what should be the standard of value and legalized medium of trade has been fixed and decreed by the customs, commerce and thought of six thousand years." The writer evidently did not mean what he said in the paragraph quoted above, which is an extract from a long and ably written article on the financial condition of our Government. The writer of this article handles the subject with a clear-headedness that convinces us that this paragraph misrepresents him. He could not have been ignorant of the fact that nearly every conceivable substance has been used by the different nations of the earth as standards of value. In India, cakes of tea; in China, pieces of silk; the Britains once used slaves and cattle: at another time leaden money; the Russians as late as 1845 used platinum; 700 years before Christ, NUMA POM-PILIOUS made money out of wood and leather; the Carthagenians also used leather; the Greeks coined tin, and also made cattle a standard of value: Holland, as late as 1855, made silver the only standard of value; the northern part of Italy, Venice, used notes of credit for more than a century. proved by dispatches more in detail, These notes were transferable and the par value above the value of gold. With these facts before him, we are satisfied that the above paragraph does not correctly represent his idea. It also contradicts his own thoughts. as presented in other parts of the same article. But the idea is entertained by a large class throughout the country that gold and silver have ever been the only standard of value among all nations. Nothing could be more erroneous. A majority of the nations of the earth use these articles at this time as a standard of value, but it is only by common consent and not for any intrinsic value there is in the metals. If the world were to consent that tin, copper, or any other substance should become the standard value, it would answer the same purpose that gold and silver does. Money exists not by nature, but by law.

How often it happens that, amid the rush of passing events, their very activity blinds the eye of prudent farseeing consideration. Events of vital importance to men and nations pass by unheeded, because not understood. We know not when the tide is at its ebb or when at its flow. This infirmity seems to be almost universal. Notwithstanding a failure to rightly understand the results of passing events has intailed incalculable disaster upon men and nations, yet we fail to learn wisdom from experience. The encreachments of power are so insiduous, the departures from a pure integrity are so gradual that the dearest reingts of a people are subverted ere they are aware of it. Even when some noble mind disengaging itself from present entanglements and shedding the light of a momentary inspiration upon the slumbering masses, like Casandra, its warnings are unheeded until too late to avert the catastrophe. Many years ago Patrick Henry stood upon the watch towers of his country, warned the States to beware of the encroachments of the general government, and told lethorgic people that time was fast approaching, when liberty should be endangered and lost, and personal safty jeoparded by the usurpation of power. It seemed that the scales had fallen from his eyes, and sweeping his country's history at a glance, he beheld in past and present events, unnoticed by the blind and infatuated, a system of connected wheels which was working out her destiny as a people and herexistence as a nationality. His voice fell upon dull and listless ears, but he died at his post, struggling to avert the calamity. But we have lived to see his prophecies well nigh fulfilled. No one who will calmly watch the tendency of events can fail to see in it ruinous consequences to us as a nation. The old time herers are projects nearly this distance abruptly into the ocean and reaches within one mile of the course usually taken by coast line steamers. Bewildered by the impenetrable fog, and a little off his reckoning perhaps in passing the bay, the commander steered too near this rocky projection with the result he died at his post, struggling as a nation. The old time-honored given. land-marks are lost sight of. Little bosoms the most degenerate classes of humanity in order to obtain votes. But as soon as the election is over, what a wonderful forgetfulness comes over him. He then knows nobody but his own set, and while he is in power his entire energies are directed to making its possession yield him wealth. This, however, is a lower grade; where lust of power works detriment to the masses. It is that higher sphere, where the liberties of the people are sought to be subverted, that it proves the greater foe. As a people we stand in this fearful condition to day, and it becomes the people to awake to its terrible reality. The last ultimate appeal is to them, and if they save not themselves the fault is theirs; the loss is theirs. We care not how despotic government may be, a brave united people can wring the magna charta from tyrannic King JOHN. No deceitful tramp of a despotic foot ever yet crushed a truth, when the honest, true-hearted masses said to him: "Thus far and no farther shalt thou go." The reader will make the application.

THE VESSEL-THE COMMAN DER-THE LOSS.

Latest Telegraphic Reports.

Los Angeles was thrown into a fever of excitement vesterday morning by the announcement of the destruction of the Ventura. The first vague report, that the vessel was burned off the coast of Santa Barbara, was quickly diswhich fixed the place of the disaster at Point Sur, seventeen miles South of ample. Monterey and 102 miles from San Francisco. Much of the general anxlety was relieved, also, when it was known to a certainty that no lives had been lost in the wreck and that, instead of being burned at sea, the vessel lay aground at the point named.

PASSENGERS AND FREIGHT. The Ventura sailed from San Francisco on Tuesday, the 20th instant with 225 passengers and 500 tons of freight. She was due at San Pedro yesterday morning. The names of passengers whom she brought for Los Angelet, as telegraphed here Tuesday, are as follows: Mrs Smiley and sister, PH Swan, HD Squaish, LC Goodwin, SF Grant, A G McCreary, Mrs C Rice, F A Sampson, M P Cutter, A Folk e, A C Nixon, wife and two children, C D Mentry, Sam'l Brown, A M Lawrence, J Samuels, W Meredith, Mary Cerelli, M Sheath, C Brown and Mary Cerelli, M Sheath, C Brown and wife, P Riley, Mrs Shulock, J W Stump, L H Knapp, G Carter, T C Cochran, A G Dow, Miss E Edwards, L T Emory, D Freeman, J Harrold, M Swindles and wife, R K Woodruff, M Bush, Geo Carpenter, W F Kellett, S Dixon, P Anger, Mrs Sheath and two children, H Leonard, J M Bush, P Ryran, W J Ryan, W J Polley, D Pierce. The list numbers altogether 52 and includes the names of a num-52 and includes the names of a number of prominent citizens of Los An-telegram received by the HERALD yeserday afternoon: MONTEREY, April 22d-2 P. M.-The Ventura struck a rock while off Point Sur, between 8 and 10 o'clock Tuesday evening, during the prevalence of a dense fog. Her bottom was stove in and the ship grounded in twelve feet of water, head to the sea. She lies about two hundred yards from the shore. The passengers were all safely landed, but it is thought that the ship and cargo will prove a total loss. The steamer Santa Cruz was dispatched from this place for the passengers and baggage, and the Ancon will take them from here down the coast.

A. H. HARRIS, Agent G., N. & P. S. S. Co.

Later dispatches seem to indicate that the case of the wrecked steamer and her cargo is not so bad as a first stated. Should the sea remain calm. it is hoped that a good portion of the freight will be saved, although probably in a badly damaged condition. Abundant assistance is at hand, and the result depends entirely on the ac-tion of the elements.

THE CAUSE of the disaster can only be assigned to the dense fog which prevailed on the evening of the 20th. Sailing down the coast, the interior line of Monterey Bay was passed some ten miles to the larboard. Below the bay the shore projects nearly this distance abruptly he assumed the Master's position on the Vetura. So far as we can learn, this was his first attempted trip, as commander, down the coast below Monterey.

THE VENTURA was always regarded and no doubt was a staunch craft, and the fastest on the line. She had just left the docks at San Francisco where she had been laid up a number of weeks for repairs. and, upon taking the water again, made the very creditable record of 13 knots an hour. This vessel, previously known as the "Resaca," was purchased by the Goodall, Nelson & Perkin's company from the United States Government about 18 months ago. The price then paid for the craft was some $27,000. Repairs and improvements were made throughout; new engines were supplied at a cost of $40,000 and the whole refitted for passenger and freight traffic, making a total expense to the company of $200,000, when the Ventura stood completed. The original capacity of the steamer was 750 tons, but this was increased to 900 tons by the substitution of the new combination engines.

THE LOSS can hardly be estimated at this time. Notwithstanding the adverse reports which we have received, the vessel may not be entirely destroyed and her cargo may be partially rescued from the wreck, provided the weather continues fair. Still the destruction of property must necessarily be immense and probably the merchants of Los Angeles, together, are the heaviest losers. Between three and four hundred tons of the freight which the vessel carried down with her was consigned to Los Angeles. This being the time of year when the Spring and Summer stocks are brought from San Francisco, nearly every merchant in the city had goods in greater or less quantity on board the ill-fated steamer. The aggregate loss is estimated at from $50,000 to $75,000. Much of this is in small amounts, ranging from $100 to $1,000. Some of the particular losses we have ascertained to be as follows: Lehman & Co., $7,000 worth of carpets, insured for $6,000; Hellman, Haas & Co., $2,000; Rivara & Vignola, $1,500; Grange Store, $2,000; Dotter & Bradley, $1,600; I. Cohn, $1,000; Polaski & Goodwin, $800; Levy & Coblentz, $600; Goldsmith & Davis, $500; Dunsmoor Bros., $250; New-mark & Co., $800.

"NO INSURANCE," was given in response to nearly every question propounded to the losing merchants on this subject, and in our list only one firm appears protected. Through our long exemption from losses of this kind, most of our merchants have grown careless on the subject of marine insurance which is perhaps the most es-sential of all protections against unforseen disasters. The pitch-er that went to the well so many times has at last been broken and they will bably take warning from this ex-sailed from San Francisco yesterday to take up the wrecked passengers of the Ventura. She will bring in addition to the list already given the following named persons: Mrs Sheets & family, Geo Thurston, D Felix, Mrs Fox & daughter, R D Milus, Mrs C M Porter, E Atwood, L F Sheets, C W Sheets, Mrs D Felix, J Holmes, W R Tillman, T Tillman, Mrs C E Watson. The steamer is due at San Pedro to-morrow or Sunday; the time not being definitely fixed, and is adver-tised to sail for San Diego on Monday.

Frye replied they were, and that they violated their plighted honor by this outrageous action. Congressman Wheeler telegraphs to Kellogg that while still of the opinion expressed to him and Pard, he does not feel at liberty to give a written opinion without the concurrence of his associates. The opinion referred to was that the four opinion referred to was that the four members unseated were to be undisturbed.

London, April 20th. - The Mark Lane Express in its weekly review, says of wheat: "There have been larger arrivals and the wheat is in better condition, without the market being shaken, although some heaviness remains. Some of the markets note better prices, but not sufficient to influence the London quotations, which are almost at the bottom."

The Value of Praise.

Children need praise. Children are sometimes half-starved for a little hearty praise. Conscientious teachers regard is had to public integrity. Lust of power and lust of wealth have usurped the place of Republican simplicity. In these days the idea of official integrity is laughed at. The familiar affability of office-seekers before elections is a matter of remark by all. They are ready to hug to their tain Harlos retiring from the service.

The Commanded by Capt. Fake who has been in the service and parents refuse it on principle. They are conscientious fools for their pains. Boys will act up to the estimate put upon them, or at least they do, if they are worth their salt. A hearty word of commendation is meat and drink to them for the next endeavor. Sincere commendation is the wine of life. He who withholds it, when he can give it, is a churl.

A school of mines is to be established at Denver.

The Mysterious Fire Boat.

The first report of trouble on the ocean received here yesterday morning was a telegram stating that a large steamer had been seen off the coast of Santa Barbara with the whole of her forepart in flames. The dispatch further stated that she was firing min-ute guns as a signal of distress. The weather was very foggy and no defi-nite information could be obtained.

About noon Mr. McLellan, the steam-ship agent, received the following dispatch, in response to an inquiry con-cerning the mysterious craft:

Nothing heard yet reliable. Think ma steamers, as their course lies further out at sea. None of the coast line steamers could have been in that locality at that time and thus the identity of the scorched vessel remains shrouded in doubt. It is considered certain, however, that she escaped destruction.

Bees and Honey.

Mr. A. J. Davidson, one of the leading bee-keepers of our county, gives us a good report of his last shipment of honey, which, he says brought 15 cents at San Francisco. This, we are informed, is a tip-top price paid in the San Francisco market, and the sale was thus effected on account of the close grading of the article before shipment. Mr. Davidson says that the most of the bee-keepers have their hives cleaned ready for Summur operations but the bees have not commenced making honey yet. The delay is caused by the scarcity of feed as a result of the late frosts. The crop altogether will not be more than two-thirds of last year's yield it is thought.
